Part IV: Reading Comprehension Test

Leading investors have joined the growing chorus of concern about governments and companies rushing into producing biofuels as a solution for global warming, saying that many involved in the sector could be jeopardizing future profits if they do not consider the long-term impact of what they are doing carefully.

It is essential to build sustainability criteria into the supply chain of any green fuel project in order to ensure that there is no adverse effect on the surrounding environment and social structures. The report produced by the investors expresses concern that many companies may not be fully aware of the potential pitfalls in the biofuel sector.

Production of corn and soya beans has increased dramatically in the last years as an eco-friendly alternative to fossil fuels but environmental and human rights campaigners see that the devastation of rain forests is happening. Food prices could also go up as there is increased competition for crops as both foodstuffs and sources of fuel. Last week, the UN warned that biofuels could have dangerous side effects and said that steps need to be taken to make sure that land converted to grow biofuels does not damage the environment or cause civil unrest. There is already great concern about palm oil, which is used in many foods in addition to being an important biofuel, as rain forests are being cleared in some countries and people driven from their homes to create palm oil plantations.

An analyst and author of the investors' report says that biofuels are not a cure for climate change but they can play their part as long as governments and companies manage the social and environmental impacts thoroughly. There should also be greater measure taken to increase efficiency and to reduce demand.

37. What is the best title for this report?
- a. Biofuels and the Environment c. Criteria in Green Energy
b. Global Warming and Green Businesses d. Biofuels, the Cure!
38. Environmentalists believe that increased production of corn and soya _____.
- a. has destroyed rain forests c. may lead to the destruction of rain forests
b. had destroyed rain forests d. will lead to the destruction of rain forests
39. What does the author of the report say about biofuels?
- a. Biofuels can be effective in fighting global warming on their own. c. Biofuels are not bringing the real profits to the companies.
b. Biofuels have no role to play in fighting global warming. d. Biofuels should be part of group of measures to fight global warming.
40. Which of the following statements is NOT the "side effect" of mass production of biofuels?
- a. Biofuels may drive food prices up. c. Growers of corn and soya beans have suffered from sterile lands.
b. The increased production of palm oil affects both people and the environment. d. More Competitions for sources can soon be seen.
41. The word "jeopardizing" is the closest in meaning to _____.
- a. forming c. creating
b. risking d. existing

參考用

Before the grass has thickened on the roadside verges and leaves have started growing on the trees is a perfect time to look around and see just how dirty Britain has become. The pavements are stained with chewing gum that has been spat out and the gutters are full of discarded fast food cartons. Years ago I remember travelling abroad and being saddened by the plastic bags, discarded bottles and soiled nappies at the edge of every road. Nowadays, Britain seems to look at least as bad. What has gone wrong?

The problem is that the rubbish created by our increasingly mobile lives lasts a lot longer than before. If it is not cleared up and properly thrown away, it stays in the undergrowth for years; a semi-permanent reminder of what a tatty little country we have now.
